DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 21-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for compounds and salts, does not reasonably provide enablement for solvates. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The claims, insofar as they embrace solvates are not enabled. Example 13 did not produce a solvate, nor did the isomer in example 13. Indeed, the numerous examples presented all failed to produce a solvate. The evidence of the specification is thus clear: These compounds generally, and this species in particular, do not possess the property of forming solvates; there is no evidence that such compounds even exist. Thus, this is a circumstance where the "specification is evidence of its own inadequacy" (In re Rainer, 377 F.2d 1006, 1012, 153 USPQ 802, 807). These cannot be simply willed into existence. As was stated in Morton International Inc. v. Cardinal Chemical Co., 28 USPQ2d 1190 "The specification purports to teach, with over fifty examples, the preparation of the claimed compounds with the required connectivity. However ... there is no evidence that such compounds exist... the examples of the '881 patent do not produce the postulated compounds... there is ... no evidence that such compounds even exist." The same circumstance appears to be true here: there is no evidence that solvates of these compounds actually exist; if they did, they would have formed. Hence, applicants must show that solvates can be made, or limit the claims accordingly.

Claims 24-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for hyperlipoproteinaemia, hypercholesteremia, does not reasonably provide enablement for lipid metabolism disorders generally. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The specification states on page 3, "The compounds are of use in the treatment of diseases where under-activation of the HM74A receptor contributes to the disease or where activation of the receptor will be beneficial". The compounds are further disclosed as HM74A agonists or partial agonists, and thus, treatment of hyperlipoproteinaemia, hypercholesteremia or hypertriglyceridaemia is reasonable. However, treatment of the reverse problems, e.g. hypoproteinaemia (including Abetalipoproteinaemia and Tangier disease), which would fall within the "lipid metabolism disorder" of claim 24 and the "dyslipidaemia" of claim 25, would not be enabled, and indeed, these agonists would logically be expected to make such conditions worse rather than better.

legible copy of: (1) each foreign patent; (2) each publication or that portion which caused it to be listed; (3) for each cited pending U.S. application, the application specification including claims, and any drawing of the application, or that portion of the application which caused it to be listed including any claims directed to that portion, unless the cited pending U.S. application is stored in the Image File Wrapper (IFW) system; and (4) all other information, or that portion which caused it to be listed. In addition, each IDS must include a list of all patents, publications, applications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office (see 37 CFR 1.98(a)(1) and (b)), and MPEP § 609.04(a), subsection I. states, "the list ... must be submitted on a separate paper." Therefore, the IDS submitted cannot be considered. The references were not provided. Once these references are provided, the IDS can be processed.
